Dairy Sector in Kenya & Africa

Kenya's dairy sector is estimated at 14% of Kenya's agricultural GDP. Milk is primarily produced by smallholder dairy farmers who account for 56% of total output. It is estimated that the sector has 1.8 million smallholder farmers (about 80% of producers). The remaining 44% of milk output comes from large commercial farmers.

Sustainable consumption and production in the dairy sector involve everything from the production of nutritious feeds and artificial breeding to the creation and marketing of value-added products. It is also necessary to consider farmyard manure as a by-product and renewable energy as an input.

The Kenyan Govt. therefore needs to reduce the increasing complexity of sustainable consumption by standardizing livestock production and supports on imports, exports and prices (2021-2029). There's also a dairy master plan to guide the development of the industry up to 2030.

African Dairy Sector African continent has 1.406 billion milking animals which has 19.7 years median age with milk production of 48.80 million tones. 28% of produced milk is processed in Africa and per capita consumption is 45 kg/ year.
